

Mattioli in the frame

BY THEN, Mattioli, pictured, may have other things on his mind. Though he said he will not lobby for the role, he is likely to be at least one of the candidates to succeed Nicola Coccia as president of shipowners' association Confindarma at the annual meeting in June.

Locating potential presidents is in the hands of three wise men — Giuseppe D'Amato, Alfonso Scannapieco and Giovanni Delle Piane — who will canvas the membership over the coming weeks before handing a list to the board. The members will vote on their selection in June. While the bookies may not have pronounced yet, Mattioli may be worth a flutter, though the heavy betting these days appears to be on Rome-based tanker operator Paolo d'Amico.
